

Sports Participation by Country & Location (Female) – Detailed Analysis

The chart presents female sports participation counts across 10 countries, split into Indoor (blue) and Outdoor (green) categories.

1. Top Performers

Australia leads with a total of 6 participations (Indoor: 2, Outdoor: 4), indicating a highly active female sports culture, with a strong preference for Outdoor sports (2× higher than Indoor).

USA follows with 4 participations evenly split between Indoor and Outdoor, showing balanced sports engagement.

2. Low Participation Countries

Argentina, Austria, Sweden each record only 1 Outdoor sport and 0 Indoor sports, highlighting limited participation

3. Regional Patterns & Insights

Europe (France, Germany, Netherlands, Spain, UK, Sweden, Austria) generally shows moderate participation (1–4 total), with Spain and UK leaning Outdoor.

Oceania (Australia) dominates in Outdoor sports, possibly due to climate and cultural emphasis on outdoor activities like cricket, rugby, and surfing.

North America (USA) shows well-rounded engagement across both categories.

4. Recommendations

For low-participation countries: Increase promotion of Indoor sports where outdoor facilities or weather may be limiting factors.

For Outdoor-heavy nations: Encourage indoor activities for year-round participation and weather resilience.
